

Welcome to the Opera

Fourteenth Season ~ 2013

Rimrock Opera is at a turning point. Looking back over its 14-year history, we proudly salute Artistic Director Douglas Nagel, whose excellent leadership and artistic vision have guided RO from a fledgling to a mature opera company. Tonight's Aida, his 23rd production, caps a proud legacy as Artistic Director and Producer that began in 2000 with Madama Butterfly.

Looking to the future, an opportunity has arisen from Venture Theatre's recent challenges whereby both Venture and Rimrock Opera can grow and secure their futures by merging. Established programs will continue, such as the Youth Conservatory and ROCK kids' chorus, Venture into Schools, trademark musicals and plays, main stage operas, Opera 101, and other opera-related activities. Out of this collaboration, a performing arts center will expand revenues by offering space for a wider spectrum of users. The center will become an important part of the community and facilitate lifelong learning in theater arts. A comprehensive business plan will allow donors to realize the benefit of integration. Both boards look forward to the exciting new partnership of two wonderful groups. You are invited to join us for the Grand Opening on May 11th.

Lucinda S. Butler, President

Since its inception in 2000, RO has been a big part of my career. While focusing on my current Assistant Professorship at MSU Billings, I recall all of the accomplishments RO and I have completed to date. There have been many tours into schools across Montana and Northern Wyoming with shows The Cell Phone, Madama Butterfly, American Opera Idol, and a huge success with The Night Harry Stopped Smoking. Over 20,000 young people experienced opera at their own schools. Under my tutelage, RO has produced four Summer Opera Festivals, the world premiere Nosferatu, plus twenty-three main stage productions including some of the most famous operas: La bohème, La traviata, Madama Butterfly and The Barber of Seville, to name some. RO had the vision to start a children's chorus, ROCK, that has been going strong since 2005. ROCK members are on stage in this production!

None of this would have been possible without the support of our sponsors and individual contributors. Every dollar that you have given has kept our programs alive. I cannot express how proud I am to have known all of you. Thank you for all of your support.

Douglas Nagel, Artistic Director

In Memoriam

The late Henrietta V. "Hank" Johnstone was an integral member of Rimrock Opera Board of Directors since its 2001 inception. She was sole sponsor of the lavish costumes and sets for all main stage productions, providing donations comprising at least $60,000 annually. Hank passed away in October, 2012.

Her legacy continues through her generous bequest to sustain Rimrock Opera. Personally, Hank was a kind soul whose gifts to RO gave her great satisfaction in bringing high quality opera to Billings. Thank you, Hank, for leading RO to stand proudly among America's opera companies!

Our Mission

The mission of Rimrock Opera is to enhance the cultural life of this region by providing high quality opera productions and to make opera available to everyone through outreach presentations and educational programming.

Synopsis

Time: The dynasty of the Pharaohs

Place: Memphis and Thebes in ancient Egypt

Act One

In the royal palace at Memphis, Ramfis, the high priest, informs Radames, a young captain of the guard, that Ethiopia is posing a threat to the Nile Valley. Radames hopes that the goddess Isis will choose him to lead the Egyptian army, believing that a victory over the Ethiopians would enable him to free his secret love, Aïda, the Ethiopian slave of the king's daughter, Amneris. Amneris, who also loves Radames, enters and begins to question Radames, suspecting that he is in love with Aïda. A messenger announces that Amonasro is leading the Ethiopian army to march on Thebes. Radames is appointed leader of the Egyptian army, and he leads his men in a battle hymn. Amneris is echoed by her people as she cries, "Return Victorious!" Aïda is stunned to hear herself repeat these words, and contemplates her conflicted loyalties. Although her captors do not know it, she is the Princess of Ethiopia and her lover will soon be engaged in battle against her own father.

Fifteen Minute Intermission

Act Two

Radames is the victor in the battle. While awaiting his return, Amneris is groomed and entertained by her slaves. To determine if Aïda does indeed love Radames, Amneris tells her slave that he was slain in battle. Aïda's sorrowful response reveals her secret love. Amneris then discloses that Radames is really alive, but subsequently threatens Aïda. She is to keep her place as a slave and ignore her feelings for Radames. Aïda nearly confesses her royal identity, but instead, pleads for mercy. As Radames returns, a parade and dances celebrate the success of Egypt. Radames is crowned victor by Amneris and his captives are lead in; these include Aïda's father, Amonasro, disguised as an officer. He warns Aïda not to give away his royal identity, and proceeds to plead for mercy for the lives of his people. Ramfis and the priests suggest that the captives be killed, but Radames asks for the captives' freedom to be his reward. Ramfis suggests that all but Aïda's father be released. The King agrees and gives Radames the hand of Amneris as his reward for victory.

Fifteen Minute Intermission

Act Three

Ramfis leads Amneris to a temple of Isis on the bank of the Nile to receive a blessing on the eve of her wedding. Her face veiled, Aïda enters to wait in secrecy for Radames. She is immersed in nostalgic thoughts as she longs for her conquered homeland. Her thoughts are interrupted by the appearance of her father, who has learned of her love for Radames. He encourages her to betray Radames by tricking him into revealing the Egyptian army's invasion plan. She attempts to decline, but finally agrees as he scolds her loyalties and reminds her of what the Egyptians have done to her beloved homeland. Unaware of Amonasro's presence, Radames appears to Aïda, declaring that he will marry her after his next victory. She instead insists that they run away together to Ethiopia and asks which route they will take. Upon hearing the Egyptian plan, Amonasro shows himself and declares that he is actually the King of Ethiopia. Radames is horrified by his unwilling act of treason, while Aïda and Amonasro try to convince him that it was an act of fate. Amneris discovers them, declaring that Radames must be a traitor. Amonasro lunges at Amneris with a drawn dagger, but he is stopped by Radames. Radames unexpectedly urges Amonasro and Aïda to escape. He then places himself under arrest.

Act Four

Radames is sent to the Temple of Judgment where Amneris offers him a chance to save himself. She will plead for him if he will forsake Aïda, yet he refuses, preferring death. Amneris listens as the priests ask him three times to defend himself. Radames refuses to answer and is condemned to death. Amneris, appalled at the consequences of her jealousy, declares that their need for revenge will kill an innocent man. Buried alive in a tomb beneath the temple, Radames thinks only of Aïda. Suddenly, she appears in the presumably sealed tomb, having slipped in earlier to share her lover's fate. Radames fails in a final, desperate attempt to remove the stone holding them in the chamber. Resigned to their fate, the lovers bid farewell to the earth. Radames faces death with Aïda. Appearing above the vault, Amneris mourns and prays. Δ

About the Composer

Giuseppe Fortunino Francesco Verdi (1813 – 1901) was an Italian Romantic composer, mainly of opera. He was one of the most influential composers of the 19th century. His works are frequently performed in opera houses throughout the world and, transcending the boundaries of the genre, some of his themes have long since taken root in popular culture – such as "La donna è mobile" from Rigoletto, "Va, pensiero" (The Chorus of the Hebrew Slaves) from Nabucco, "Libiamo ne' lieti calici" (The Drinking Song) from La traviata and the "Grand March" from Aida. Verdi's masterworks dominate the standard repertoire a century and a half after their composition.

Richelle Stricker ~ Stage Manager

Ms. Stricker was born and raised in Billings and graduated from Billings West High School in 2000. She played trumpet in Symphonic Band, Jazz Band, Orchestra, Marching Band, and Pep Band. She attended Montana State University Billings and earned a B.A. in music performance. She attended Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, but when Hurricane Katrina hit, she returned to Billings. Moving to another side of music, she joined Local 240, I.A.T.S.E., working shows and concerts and also for the Alberta Bair Theater and the Billings Symphony. She also works for J.D. Construction, trimming out and remodeling houses, and part-time at Log Cabin School, helping to shape the next generation. Δ

Kristen Klimper ~ Wig and Make-up Director

Ms. Klimper has been Director of Hair and Makeup for eight of Rimrock Opera Company's productions in the last seven years. Ms. Klimper worked in salons in the Billings area for 10 years before returning to school and earning a degree in Liberal Studies in Music from Montana State University Billings, and currently studies with Douglas Nagel. Ms. Klimper loves using her multiple talents in music and hair artistry to enrich the Billings community. Ms. Klimper is currently teaching music and art for the YMCA, and has a private voice studio. Δ

Loretta Jensen Wittmer ~ Costume Director

Mrs. Wittmer returns for her seventh production with Rimrock Opera. She made her Rimrock Opera debut in 2009 with The Barber of Seville. Raised in eastern North Dakota, Loretta learned to sew from her mother at the age of eight, and continued with sewing in 4-H and high school. Mrs. Wittmer studied music as well. Loretta has sewn for clients for over fifty years and has had shops in North Dakota and most recently, Loretta's Sewing Room in Billings. Continually seeking to learn and experiment with sewing techniques and products, Loretta now enjoys the new experience of working with the artists in Rimrock Opera. Δ

Marie A. Thompson ~ Costume Assistant

Ms. Thompson has designed and built costumes for the former Ballet Binghamton, Binghamton, New York, where she learned to work with the choreographer and the music to create costumes specifically for dance. She also worked with volunteers to teach them the unique requirements of sewing for the ballet. The job included shopping for fabric locally and in New York City. Ms. Thompson worked briefly for the late Betty Fredricks, costumer at Tri-Cities Opera in Binghamton and for the theater department at State University of New York (SUNY) Binghamton. Her educational background is in Home Economics Education at Drexel University, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, then called Drexel Institute of Technology. Δ

Angie Langeliers, ROCK Director

Rimrock Opera Chorus for Kids (ROCK) is a select choral program founded by the Rimrock Opera in September 2004. Its mission is “to challenge, to teach and to elevate—through music of the highest quality.”

Singers ages 6-18 are invited to audition for participation in a two-semester season with weekly rehearsals and many opportunities for public performances. Besides Rimrock Opera’s mainstage performances in Alberta Bair Theater and OperaFest dinner and show, ROCK has performed at such events as the Big Sky State Games, Mannheim Steamroller and Rita Coolidge concerts, Billings Symphony Orchestra and Chorale concerts, the Montana Music Teachers Association, Moss Mansion events and numerous other venues.

Cantabile Choir - Grades 1-8

As a part of this choir, students learn about vocal technique, choral singing and basic music theory concepts. The students perform two, three, and four-part treble music. They also learn music theory, history, rhythm, diction and vocal techniques.

Bel Canto Choir - Grades 9-12

This high school chorus performs music of varying genres, styles, and languages. These students learn more advance musicianship skills, including theory, history, rhythm and sight-singing.

Auditions are held twice a year in September and January. For information, call Rimrock Opera at 671.2214 or Mrs. Langeliers at 697.3455, or email rimrockoperakids@gmail.com. Learn more about ROCK on our website, www.rimrockopera.org, and Facebook. Δ

Patrons of the Opera

The Importance of Your Gift

Even with a sold-out theater, ticket sales cover only about 25% of the cost of staging an opera. Help is always needed to bridge the gap between ticket income and the expense of producing Grand Opera. Some of our many costs include employing the Rimrock Opera Orchestra, stagehands, lighting designers, technical staff, conductors and artists.

Education and Outreach

Experiencing opera challenges and enriches students while creating a foundation for their lifelong enjoyment of the arts. Your support ensures the continuation and expansion of our many programs, which are a valuable resource for the community. Rimrock Opera Chorus for Kids (ROCK) is prospering. Demand is increasing dramatically for in-school programs and community performances. Rimrock Opera works hard to be everywhere for everyone.
